

JLL Announces Two Portland Executives Receive Promotions

PORTLAND, August 26, 2014 – JLL announced that the following professionals in the Portland office, have received promotions:

Paige Morgan has been promoted to Senior Vice President. Morgan was previously Vice President with JLL and has over 16 years of experience in commercial real estate, specializing in disposition and acquisition assignments throughout the Pacific Northwest. Morgan's experience encompasses extensive work in acquisitions, dispositions and asset management. Morgan joined Pacific Real Estate Partners, merged with JLL, in 2006. Her background also includes five years with regional developer Schnitzer West, the management of a 1.4M SF portfolio and the disposition of over $600M of commercial property.

Kevin Kriesien has been promoted to Vice President. Kriesien was previously Senior Associate with JLL and has over seven years of experience specializing in industrial and flex properties. Working closely with local, regional and national clients, Kriesien has been able to add valuable expertise to companies as they assess their real estate needs. His experience includes landlord and tenant representation, corporate advisory services, and owner-user sales. With a strong attention to detail he has developed strategic plans to help his clients understand the technical and financial complexities of the market. Focusing primarily on Portland's Westside submarkets, Kriesien has completed just over two million square feet in industrial properties with a total consideration in excess of $39M.
